Five Carnival Queen Finalists Chosen; Cabaret Stars Student Entertainment

Campus Will Vote February 14 For Student Sweetheart

By DON ALLEN

The names of the five finalists for the title of McGill's Winter Carnival Queen of 1951 were announced last night.

Students' Society president Boris Gardavsky revealed the names of the five selected co-eds after a board of six judges had interviewed the 30 nominees individually at a tea in the Royal Victoria College yesterday afternoon. Chosen on a basis of "poise, personality, charm, and beauty," the five finalists are Dorothy Baxter, B. Arch. II, from St. Lambert, Que.; Rose Huycke, B. Sc. II, from Toronto, Ont.; Lois Marcou, B.A. II, from Hanover, N.H.; Helen Nullic, B.A. II, from Westmount, Que.; Martha Wickenden, B.Sc. IV, from Three Rivers, Que.

The judges were Gardavsky, Jim Cartier, president of the Union House Committee, Peggy Pierce, president of the Women's Union, Jim Ross, chairman of the Winter Carnival committee, Professor Benjamin Higgins of the Department of Economics, and Joy Gil-mour, dress designer.

Voting for the 1951 Carnival Queen from among the five finalists will take place next Wednesday, Feb. 14, at polling booths that will be set up in the various buildings on the campus. Both men and women students will be allowed to vote. The name of the winning candidate will not be announced until the time of her coronation by Mayor Houde at the Ice Festival at the Forum on Feb. 16. She will reign over the Carnival for the rest of the week-end and will be in attendance at the Grand Carnival Ball on Saturday.

An active week is in store for all five finalists who will campaign during the next six days for election to the regal position. Their public appearances, as a group, will include an introduction to the student body at today's Students' Society meeting, an appearance at the model Parliament next Tuesday, attendance at a miniature Athletics Night this Friday, and a radio interview next Tuesday.

Parliament on Foreign Policy Will Feature Bilingual Debate

Under the British North America Act of 1867, Canadians were guaranteed the right to use both major languages for legal and legislative purposes. McGill students will have an opportunity to see this principle in action next Tuesday evening, when McGill's first bilingual model Parliament of recent years will convene in the Union Ballroom.

Students from the University of Montreal have been invited to voice their opinions in the debate on a bill which discusses Canada's foreign policy in Asia, and will do so in their native language.

House leader will be Jean Trudeau, head of the U. of M. Liberal group, who will act as Prime Minister. Dunc Fraser, president of the McGill Liberal Club, will be deputy Prime Minister and Minister for External Affairs.

Other groups of students who will make up the House will be announced later in the week.

Text of the Bill is as follows:

Whereas in the face of the growing power and influence of Communism in Asia it is advisable that Canada have a definite policy as regards her relations towards the countries of that continent;

And whereas it has proved impracticable for the western powers to meet the military forces of Asian Communism in open battlefields in certain areas of that continent;

And whereas it has proved impracticable for the western powers to meet the military forces of Asian Communism in open battlefields in certain areas of that continent;

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

1. Canada encourage the policy of consolidating the position of those countries best able to withstand the forces of Communism, those countries to act as a defensive ring around the Communism-dominated territories.

2. This policy be implemented by the following measures:
 - a) Economic and technical aid to non-Communist Asiatic countries calculated to establish their economies on a more secure basis.
 - b) Arms aid to these countries, to be supplemented, in case of overt Communist aggression, by military assistance in the form of men and material.
 - c) The dissemination of the ideas of the free-non-Communist world throughout the whole of Asia.

3. Sections (a) and (b) of the preceding article be qualified in that the measures therein set forth do not apply to Korea, Indo-China, or Tibet, and that they both apply with particular reference to those countries threatened by Communist aggression, such as: Malay, Siam, and Persia.

Martin Speech Cancelled

The Hon. Paul Martin, Canada's Minister of National Health and Welfare, who was scheduled to address the McGill student body on Friday, February 12 has "due to previous commitments" been forced to cancel his visit.

The Cabinet Minister's cancellation was announced by the Medical Undergraduate Society yesterday. Mr. Martin however did not elaborate on the reasons for his cancellation.

Reorganization Is Aim of Motion

Seek Student Approval of Plan To Change Athletics Regulation

A motion charging that present regulation of McGill athletic activities "is undemocratic in its representation" and urging changes in the student athletic administration will be presented at today's meeting of the Students' Society, it was learned last night.

The motion calls for the Society to approve in principle a re-organizational plan unanimously approved by the student Intramural Council at a meeting yesterday afternoon, "thus giving voice to the students' recognition of a need for a general discussion of the reorganization."

Edward Crawford, Med. 3, and Bill Magyar, Eng. 3, gave notice to Boris Gardavsky, president of the Students' Society, that they would move and second the motion at today's meeting.

Approval of this reorganizational plan, drawn up by an Intramural Council committee which has been discussing the matter since before Christmas, by the Intramural Council at a regular monthly meeting yesterday is seen as the first definite move to bring into the open discussion of the present student athletic set up which has been going on behind the scenes since the beginning of the session.

Changes proposed in the Intramural Council are:

Society Meet To Review Sports Plan

(In the interest of enlightened discussion at today's Students' Society meeting of the present organization of athletics at McGill and of proposals to change the form of student athletics administration, The Daily published below the full text of a reorganizational plan unanimously approved yesterday by the Students' Intramural Recreational Council, known popularly as the Intramural Council. The Intramural Council is composed of representatives of all faculties elected annually at the undergraduate society elections. —Ed.)

This letter has to do with a proposed major change in the whole Athletics organization of McGill University. Copies of it have been sent to the Students' Athletic Council, and Students' Intramural Recreational Council for their study and suggestions.

The whole aim of its drafters is an improvement in and consequent more efficient operation of the Athletics organization at our University. Although the drafters all do belong to one of the organizations affected by the proposed change, it must be understood at the outset, that neither they themselves nor any other individual person, present or future member of their organization affected, stand to gain anything by the plan.

The benefit will be derived, firstly by the Athletics organization as a whole, it being converted into a more efficient body, and secondly by the student body of our University as a whole, who will benefit by the more efficient working of such organization.

When the form of the present Athletics organization, the S.A.C. was drawn up, it worked well and served the needs of the times. But since then our University has grown in numbers and importance, and along with such various departments of Athletics, both intramural and intercollegiate have grown.

Also a certain number of new departments have made their appearance, such as Winter Carnival and Athletics Nights. This growth has made the S.A.C. an unwieldy and (Continued on Page 4.)

President Asks For Quorum

"The vital issue of this meeting is the amendment making the elected representative to the Students' Athletic Board a voting member of the Students' Executive Council," said Students' Society President Boris Gardavsky in a statement to The Daily last night. He added that "since the basic issue of student representation in athletics at McGill is being brought up, I am certain that all thinking students will be vitally interested in the question."

Communists Discussed by Veteran at P C Meeting

By ETHEL GOLDSTEIN

Cross-debate and heated argument on the subject of Communists in general and McGill Communists in particular, followed an address given by Edward Alepin "Communist at McGill."

Mr. Alepin, who is a veteran and a second year Commerce student, was the speaker at a meeting of the Progressive Conservative Club, held in Salon of the McGill Union on Tuesday, February 6.

Mr. Alepin began his speech with a short resume of the origin, growth and activities of the Communist Party in Western Europe and in Russia. He declared that the Communists cannot be considered a political party, but must be recognized as a "disciplined party of revolutionary shock-troops."

Their is a religion, discipline and philosophy in which the ends justify the means and in which there is no room for criticism. Mr. Alepin divides the Communists today into two groups, the Stalinists and the Titoists.

Launching into his discussion of the McGill Communists, Mr. Alepin declared that these are Stalinists, many of whom were trained at Marxist Schools held in the summer of 1948 at St. Anne de Bellevue and Lac L'Abbe. According to Mr. Alepin, each Communist at McGill is given lists of popular students whom he is asked to contact. He is also "asked" to join certain campus organizations, such

Need 300 Students For Vital Quorum

Amendment Will Also Determine Music, Divinity Representation

Once again the Students' Society of McGill will try to get a quorum of 300 students to attend its annual meeting for the purpose of voting on proposed amendments to the constitution. A meeting of the society will be held today at 1 p.m. in the Ballroom.

An amendment which would make the elected representative to the Athletic Board a voting member of the Students' Executive Council, introduction of the finalists in the Carnival Queen contest, and several smaller amendments are included in the agenda for the meeting.

The athletics issue was on the agenda of a previous meeting scheduled to be held on December 5 which was cancelled due to lack of a quorum. The Society includes over seven thousand student members but only slightly over one hundred attended its last meeting.

The five finalists in the contest for Carnival Queen will attend the meeting and will be introduced to the students. They are Dorothy Baxter, Rose Huycke, Helen Nullic, Lois Marcou, and Martha Wickenden. The members of the S.E.C. will also be introduced.

Other amendments will alter slightly the duties of the Secretary-Treasurer of the Society, change the student representative of Music and Affiliated Theological Colleges to representative of the Faculties of Music and Divinity, and set the term of office for the S.A.C. representative to the S.E.C. as the fiscal year following his election.

Agenda for Student's Society Meeting

1. Introduction of members of

2. Introduction of finalists in Carnival Queen contest.
3. Amendments to Constitution:

- a. Elected representative to the Students' Athletic Board.
- b. Faculty of Divinity.
- c. Duties of Secretary-Treasurer.

4. Proposal "Reorganization of Students' Athletic Council" moved by Ed Crawford and seconded by Bill Magyar.

Toba Queen Captive, Is Med Monarch

Winnipeg, Man., — (CUP) — Life of a Queen, is no bed of roses, as Ann Graburn, kidnapped queen of the University of Manitoba will testify. Miss Graburn was a candidate for Queen of the Engineers' Power Prom, held last week. At the 11th hour, under the assumption that she and the other candidates were going to be photographed, Miss Graburn and her rivals were spirited away by a group of Medical students, to a house in Winnipeg.

The girls were then taken to a nearby cafe where the medical students were having a party. Miss Graburn was chosen as Queen of the Medical faculty during the evening. The Engineers later informed the Manitoban, student newspaper, that "We give the Meds all due credit. It was a good stunt but they'll be sorry. They ain't seen nuttin' yet." The Manitoban reported the story of the kidnapping on their front page under a headline "WAR DECLARED?"

Student Councillors Elect Taylor Vice-President of Students Society

Charles Taylor, third year arts student, was elected last night at a meeting of the Students' Council as Vice-President of the Students' Society, by his fellow councillors. Taylor is one of the two representatives on the council from the Faculty of Arts and Science, the other being Barbara Chambers, director of the Theatrical department.

get that was submitted and to look into the future activities and plans of the club before recommending any specific amount of money.

(b) Approved the appointment of George Stephen as Chairman of the Student's Society Banquet in March.

(c) Approved the constitution of the Floating Rib, humor magazine, making it a standing committee of the Council.

(d) Approved an expenditure of 270 dollars for a Basketball Dance at the Gym, Friday, Feb. 9. The dance was formerly scheduled as a hockey, dance and following a basketball game it will be somewhat of an innovation.

(e) Approved an expenditure of 150 dollars for one extra issue of The McGill Daily. The issue will be used to provide students with the results of the student elections March 7, 1951.

(f) Approved the appointment of Henri Labelle as the S.E.C. Chief Returning Officer for the elections of March 7.

(g) Approved the appointment of George Truscott as Director of the Publications Department of the Council. In this position he will preside over a publications committee composed of members of student campus publications.

rector of the Theatrical department. As Vice-President Taylor will assist the president, Boris Gardavsky in carrying out the business of the society and the Students' Council. He will also be acting chairman of the Council in the Chairmen's absence.

The council also:

- (a) Heard Mervyn Rosenfeld, president of the new McGill Film Unit which plans to make short documentary films on the campus about students and student activities. The council approved the submitted constitution with slight amendments making the Film Unit a special committee of the council.

- A special committee composed of Barbara Chambers, Bimbo Black and Henri Labelle was set up to investigate fully the proposed budget.

Student Tour Held Today

Steinberg's Wholesale Groceries Limited will receive forty students from McGill School of Commerce today. Students will have the opportunity of examining the food-packing processes employed at the warehouse and will also briefly visit plant offices. Refreshments will be served.

Students wishing to make the tour should place their names on the Commerce Notice Board, as only forty students can be accommodated. A bus will transport students to and from Steinberg's plant.

U.N. Offensive Makes Advances in Korea

Elements of the Allied forces in Korea made gains up to four miles yesterday driving to a point only three miles south of ruined Seoul, enemy-held capital of South Korea. While Naval forces battered Communist forces in the area, ground troops rammed into the main enemy defence line stirring up a pitched battle.

On the eastern front in Korea, South Korean Infantry have penetrated to within only 25 miles of the 38th parallel as the second week of this limited allied offensive came to an end.

In central Korea the Republic troops were battling 1,500 Reds in the mountain country, under cover of U. S. air force fighter-bombers.

American diplomats from the Iron Curtain countries meeting in Paris stated that the best guess they could give was that Russia will not start a world war in 1951. They feel that another

In Lake Success at the United Nations, Russia accused the U. With midwestern rail lines in the U. Colour Photography Camera Club Topic

Professor Gordon Sproule will give a talk on colour photography to members of the Camera Club on Thursday, February 8, at 8:15 p.m. in the Union Workshop. Professor Sproule is connected with the Department of Mining and Metallurgy at McGill.

"This talk should prove especially helpful to those who want to use colour film for snow scenes," said Joan Bishop, the club president.

Partial Answer to Confusion

One of the less obvious, yet probably one of the most far-reaching motions on the agenda for today's students' Society Meeting, is that adding to members of the Student Executive Council, the elected representative to the Athletics Board. This is a direct result of the immense growth of athletic activities at McGill during the past ten years. Athletics last year had a total budget of well over two hundred thousand dollars. Every student paid fifteen dollars via his university fees into the revenue side of that total.

This growth has resulted in the growth in function and activity of the body controlling student athletics, the Student Athletic Council. The Council, originally a group of team managers brought together to handle general administrative duties, has graduated to a full fledged policy making body. This growth has actually brought the Athletic group to a point where it is considered on a plane with the Students' Executive Council. This development was in no way conceived when the Students' Society Constitution was originally formed. In fact it may be noticed that the creators of the Constitution expected the SAC to operate in a field entirely remote from the SEC and, if anything, subordinate to it.

The expansion of Athletics and the growth of the SAC has made this far from the case. The Students' Executive Council and the Athletic Council have come into conflict in many fields. Athletic Nights, and the Winter Carnival are two of the more obvious examples. These are events organized by the students and as such come under the SEC and many of its ancillary groups such as the Dates' Committee. These events, however, are also very obviously athletics and come under the S.A.C. The chairmen of both the functions mentioned above sit as non-voting members on the Athletics Council.

The confusion and possible friction has caused a great deal of unnecessary trouble. It has thus become necessary to set up some sort of an effective permanent liaison between the parent Students' Executive Council and the Athletic group. It is partly to institute this liaison that the motion to place a representative of the Athletics Council will be placed before the Student Society today.

Clarification of Athletics Set Up

By Skip Sheldon
Students' Representative to the Athletics Board

Before the student body considers any re-organization proposals it would be well to clarify the existing situation in student administration of athletics.

The governing body of athletics is the Athletics Board which determines all athletics policy. This board consists of nine members, a chairman, an vice-chairman. There are three graduate representatives, three faculty members, and three students. The three students are the president of the Students' Society, the Chairman of the Students' Athletics Council, and the Elected Athletics Representative. Mr. Obeck, Mr. Ryan, and Mr. Finlay sit on this board as well, without vote.

Secondly, there is the Students' Athletics Council, responsible for the administration and control of all university athletics for men, subject to university policy as interpreted by the Athletics Board. The S.A.C. is fundamentally composed of past managers of inter-collegiate sports. The President of the Students' Society, The Elected Athletics Representative and the Chairman of the intramural Council also have votes on the Council.

The Chairman of the S.A.C. is elected for the following year from among those members of the S.A.C. who are returning to the university with the specific exception of the Chairman of the Intramural Council and the President of the Students' Society.

Thirdly, there is the Students' Intramural Recreational Council, otherwise known as the Intramural Council. This council is composed entirely of representatives elected from each faculty at its undergraduate society election. However, its responsibilities are limited to the problem of intramural athletics and all its decisions must be ratified by the S.A.C.

The fourth and last organ of student administration is the A.S.A.C. or Athletics Social Activities Council, instituted this year as a temporary measure to mediate those functions which "were not entirely either athletic or social in nature."

This committee is presently responsible to both the S.E.C. and the S.A.C.

The A.S.A.C. is composed of the President of the Students' Society, the President of the Women's Union, the President of the M.W.S.A.A., the Chairman of the S.A.C., and the Elected Athletics Representative.

Thus we have the administration hierarchy. The Athletics Board as the highest court of appeal takes its members equally from the three interest groups, the graduates, the university, and the students. The S.A.C. which acts in the name of the students takes its members fundamentally from the past managers of intercollegiate athletics, nine of the thirteen voting members directly representing intercollegiate sports. Lastly, the Intramural Council, relegated to limited activity and responsibility, is composed entirely of men elected from their faculties.

As Others See It

What Price the Scholar's Life?

The times are not auspicious for learning. They are times of war, and war imposes a terrible burden of proof on everything that does not directly serve its ends. Just and noble as we believe those ends to be in our own case, war and the preparation for war are not conducive to the reflective life that produces great teaching and great scholarship. The teacher senses his remoteness from his fellow men. The scholar's thoughts stray to the battle field. The Promethean secret of the atom breeds fear and suspicion in all our hearts, inclining us to dismiss the past, to dread the future, and to live in the present. There is indeed "no hiding place," no fortress, and no academic cloister from which we can escape the consequences of this latest knowledge we have wrested from the gods. It seeks us all out as indiscriminately as the Roman soldier who slew Archimedes in the siege of Syracuse, not knowing who his victim was or that the scientific knowledge that died with him would not be regained for nearly eighteen hundred years.

What price the scholar's life in times like these, or the university's whose purpose is to foster that life? There have been moments in which we have all asked ourselves these questions, and at certain of those moments I, for one, have found no answers. Yet I wonder if we know our own strength. The briefest glance into history shows us that we are supported by powerful traditions—not symbols or legends, but vital forces with remarkable capacity for survival. I would cite three of these traditions: the tradition of higher learning, the university tradition, and the tradition of American democracy. Any one of these should give us courage. The three together form a tower of strength.

The American democratic tradition forms the tripod with the traditions of higher learning and the university. Europeans and Englishmen have used their universities to train their intellectual and political leaders. We have conceived a broader purpose for higher education. The purpose regards all education as a preparation for life, and higher education as the culminating phase of the process that should be available to all who have the capacity to partake of it. By capacity we do not mean only intellectual competence. We mean intellectual competence tempered by character, judgment and moral responsibility. Our purpose does not assume equal capacity or equal attainment among men. It holds rather that if men are to be thrown upon their individual resources in society, society should prepare them for that responsibility, and it should not allow that preparation to be limited by anything other than the individual's innate ability to benefit by it. This was Jefferson's corollary to popular sovereignty, his key to equal opportunity and a truly mobile democratic society. This was the means whereby the people could not only instruct themselves in the use of the franchise but also produce their leaders and teachers in every sphere of life. It was education in this sense that Jefferson called "the most legitimate engine of government," and of which he said, in words that stand out vividly against the Iron Curtain, "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be."

These traditions give us courage for the future, no matter how black it may look from day to day. These are the things Yale lives and works for, in war and peace. They are the things to cherish and defend in times of war; to fight for, when there is fighting; and to return to when war is over.—President Alfred Griswold, Yale University.

Freshman Corner

My Adventure Among the English Texts

By H. Hansard

This is the seventh in our series of Freshman writings.

In our first English lecture we were told what texts to obtain. We were given a list of ten books. Immediately after the lecture I went to a bookstore and bought these books. I then took them home to have a look at the fate to which I was condemned for the next eight months. I glanced through the pages of each book. I did this not because I had any interest in their contents. I had a sort of morbid curiosity in them.

I picked up the first few books on the top of the pile and looked at their titles, their authors and the number of pages they contained. The number of pages was the only fact I bothered to remember. That was as far as my interest extended. I came to "King Lear." I knew the story of "King Lear" slightly. The book fell open at the first page. My eyes ran across the first line. This is silly, I thought, reading Shakespeare at this hour of the morning when I don't have to; but I do have a little before lunch.

I began like a little boy setting out to explore a forest. It was the spirit of adventure that drew us both. I wandered through the words like he would wander among the trees—not aimlessly, but with the desire to penetrate more deeply. The words were as different and long as would be the trees to the little boy. The subtle contexts and hidden meanings held me back as the underbrush would try to stop him. But to both of us they presented a challenge.

Suddenly the doorbell rang. Immediately we both realized we were lost. The little boy was lost in a maze of trees; I in a maze of words. I slipped the book into my pocket with the same thoughts as the little boy would have as he ran home crying with fear. Here is a friend at the door, I thought. What if I should be found out? "Hello Jack," I said.

"Isn't that an awful set of English books we have?"

"Yes," I agreed, "terrible." But I thought "The Red Badge of Courage" peeking over the edge of his pocket.

Literary Hiccup

By Ed Parker

It is nice and warm under the covers on a cold winter morning. It is nice and comfortable in bed after missing four hours sleep the night before because of that bridge game. It is nice to lie and doze and not have to worry about that morning lecture for at least...

"Oh my gosh! Ten to nine! After this I just have to get up as soon as the alarm goes off!"

And with the necessary hustle and bustle the clothes get thrown on a sleepy figure and cold water thrown on a pair of half-closed eyes.

Running down to breakfast at nine a.m. sharp the hero picks up a copy of The Daily and tucks it under an arm which already has its clip-board tucked under and a coat being dragged by one sleeve. Gulping everything very hastily, fruit juice, hot cereal, scrambled eggs, toast, jam, page one of The Daily, and coffee are consumed.

At lecture, not satisfied with the quick perusal of the news page made at breakfast, the subject must arrange his paper on the arm rest so that the stories he noted as being of interest will be protruding from beneath the clip-board. This feat sometimes requires real skill, especially when the page is to be turned.

In this manner the student is daily enlightened on campus activities, world news, Francis Allen, and the world of sport.

You're looking for a reason or an explanation for this literary hiccup? Just call it "the first hour of a student's morning," or "how I read The Daily."

Various members of visiting athletic teams from many universities have remarked to us about the lack of a compulsory physical education program for our women students here at McGill. Most American and Canadian colleges do provide some sort of a compulsory program, especially for girls in their freshman year. Why not McGill?

Let's start at the very beginning, some thirty years ago, when athletics was necessary for all students, in order that they receive their degrees. The situation at that time, however, was far different and much simpler than it is today. Only 300 girls were registered at McGill, and two gyms were available for their continuous use. We are all familiar with the RVC cafeteria, but how many of us know that it was formerly an excellently equipped gym?

During the years of the second World War, the setup was changed somewhat. A compulsory war program was instituted for both men and women under a single management. The girls were required to spend two hours each week participating in some form of athletics, and two more periods in attending such war service classes as first aid, etc. This system encountered many difficulties for several of the classes contained as many as 75 students.

In 1946, when the service-men returned to college, it was felt that it would be unfair to compel them to participate in athletics, especially during their own living while attending lectures. The compulsory program was therefore dropped, and as the women were included in the same setup with the boys, they too were no longer required to take part in any kind of physical education.

That's the way things stand at present. There is no doubt that many students would welcome a compulsory program of some sports, but the problem isn't so easily solved. First of all, there is the question of facilities. Although registration has shot way up to 1,400, only one gym is available for the exclusive use of women. Even it, located in RVC, cannot be used at any time, for it is situated directly above the lunch room, and so cannot be occupied during meal times. In addition, the School of Physical Education holds many of its classes there. Our facilities at present are somewhat inadequate, but plans are being formulated for a possible gymnasium—pool as an annex to RVC itself.

Recently there has been a growing among the students themselves for some required program of athletics, but at present they must be content to participate in any of the very many activities offered them, voluntarily.

The trio shown here are three good reasons for the optimistic hopes that McGill basketball fans have of McGill copping the Intercollegiate basketball championship. From left to right we have SOL TOLCHINSKY, JIM MITCHNER and LOU ENDMAN. Lou was high scorer in last Saturday's game potting 16 points besides playing a fine two way game.

Georgians Serve As Pre-Western Warmup

By AL SCHMELTZER

The McGill Redmen will take to the basketball floors tonight for the last time before they meet the Western Mustangs in the big Intercollegiate game Friday night. Their opposition will be the last place Georgians.

With a win in this game the Red and White will clinch first place in the M.B.L. for their first championship. They will also be out to maintain their winning streak which now stands at three straight.

The Georgian quintet will be looking for their second win of the season in this game. They have won only one game so far this year in regular M.B.L. play and that was against Doyle Motors. McGill on the other hand have suffered only one loss in the M.B.L., and that too was against the same Doyle Motors quintet.

This will be McGill's last appearance in the M.B.L. this season, unless they decide to enter the regular playoffs. The Redmen have a record of six wins and one loss in this league and they are entrenched in first place. Three of these tilts were four point games and so they have a total of 18 points. The Y.M.H.A. Blues are in second place.

Moe Abramowitz thinks of this game as only a warmup for the big tilt against the Western Mustangs, who are now in first place in the Intercollegiate Union, Friday night. That game will be played as the second part of a doubleheader. The first game will feature the McGill Inters against the MacDonald Aggies. There will also be a new innovation as there will be a dance after the hoop tilts. Admission to this full evening's entertainment will be 50c a person and it is slated to start at 7:30 p.m.

Getting back to the game against the Georgians it will be played as the first part of a regular M.B.L. doubleheader. The second tilt will feature Doyle Motors against Wind-sors.

The Redmen will have their full team on hand for this cage tilt as Sol, Tolchinsky will have finished his work in the Red & White Revue and will be able to play Sheldon 'the Kid' Merling will either start in the center position or as a forward. Other starters

Hopes High as Boxers Prepare For 'Collegiates'

A second in a series of weekly practice bouts leading up to the Intercollegiate Championship matches to be held on Feb. 23-24 at McGill, took place in the B.W.&F. room of the gym on Tuesday afternoon.

In the afternoon's first match, John Walling, a clever, fast ducking lad in the 135 pound class, decisively Hym Rodman.

The 155 pound class had Don Stirling and Skeet Dorland facing each other in a match where the punches flew fast and thick. These middleweight fights usually provide a lot of action, and this one was no exception.

Stirling's long reach helped him no end against his stockier and more aggressive foe. Everybody was enjoying this exciting match when Dorland tripped in the corner and, in a collision with Stirling, opened up a cut over the bridge of his nose. Needless to say Stirling won by a Technical Knockout.

In the heavyweight match Jim Miller and Neil McKenzie fought to a draw in another heavy punching bout. This McKenzie, a real big fellow, once started in a formidable man to stop; but Miller is no pushover himself and he gave McKenzie many solid punches to think about on his way home.

Canada's Best Bob McFarlane Trophy Winner

Toronto, Feb. 6.—This date will be one Bob McFarlane won't forget for many a year, for it was on this day that the superb football and track star of the University of Western Ontario was named winner of the Lou E. Marsh Trophy for 1950.

The Marsh silverware, emblematic of Canada's Outstanding Athlete of the Year, was awarded to the Mustangs' starry backfielder on the basis of the unanimous choice of four judges.

The memory of this day on which he reached the shining pinnacle of Canadian sport proved well recalled by the 22 year old London, Ont., youth for still another reason. On hearing the news that he was Canada's Athlete of 1950, Bob announced that his future plans would have to exclude athletics, as McFarlane plans to commence his internship in surgery when he graduates from Western's Medical school in the spring.

To attest further to the greatness of this track and grid great, one only has to glance at his other accomplishments and honours.

In addition to this, his most recent award, McFarlane has been the recipient of two other trophies this year alone. For his accomplishments on the cinder track, he was named the winner of the J. W. Davies silverware as the Dominion's silver track and field competitor.

Earlier in the season, he was named this country's outstanding amateur athlete, and subsequently received the Norton Crowe Memorial Medal.

In addition to grabbing the lion's share of the Dominion's athletic honours, this brilliant medical student found time to top all his classmates scholastically throughout his college career.

Knutson Plays Despite Flu Marchessault, Irving Star

By FRANK SHAMY (Special to The Daily)

Quebec, Feb. 7.—Trailing by four goals going into the last minute and a half of play, Laval University came to within an ace of tying the McGill Redmen in the Quebec Coliseum tonight when they blasted three goals past Bob MacLellan in one minute and eighteen seconds but just couldn't get the equalizer in the remaining twenty seconds. The 6-5 victory for McGill keeps them in the running for the C.T.A.-U. Championship and moves them to within four points of league leading Toronto Varsity with two games in hand over the Blues.

The game was a hard fought, hard checking affair with good fast end to end hockey being played in the first and third periods. Harry Irving and Bobby Marchessault led the victors with two goals and one assist each while Gene Robillard scored one goal and collected two assists. Ray Desjardins sparked Laval's last minute drive with one goal, and he set up another.

Although Laval outshot McGill by a considerable margin many of their shots were long shots from well out, and therefore the shots on goal statistics do not reveal the true margin of play. It can be added that MacLellan turned in a fine performance between the pipes and thrust after thrust by Laval forwards were repelled with superb goaling. Bob Marchessault also stood out tonight as he worked like a demon to take some strain off Gordie Knutson, who played with an attack of flu. The ailing Knutson didn't stop trying, however, and turned in his usual strong brand of hockey.

Both teams set a fast pace in the opening period with the territorial play just about even. McGill's starting line of Knutson, Marchessault, and O'Neill had Laval hemmed in behind their the Irving, Teasdale, Robillard blue line through most of their initial jaunt on the ice, but it was trio that supplied the first scoring punch for the Redmen.

At the 4:05 mark, Harry Irving, a six footer who hails out of Calgary, blasted the puck through Drouin's legs and McGill took an early 1-0 lead. Robillard started the play passed to Teasdale and Irving converted a short pass from the blond left-winger from about twenty feet out.

Although Laval came back strong after a slow start, they couldn't dent the twine behind McGill's dependable Bob MacLellan who kicked out three hard shots in a row from Claude Roy, Hamelin, and Roddy Roy. Gordie Knutson then took over for the Redmen and at 2:31, Appleby took a pass from the ailing centre and let a screened shot go into bottom left hand corner that put McGill two up. This goal came after a concentrated Red offensive by McGill's trio of Knutson, Marchessault, and O'Neill, there was no further scoring in the period although Boutet of Laval had a good chance when he came in all alone on MacLellan.

Laval turned on the pressure as soon as they stepped out on the ice for the second period. It took McGill seven minutes to get their first shot on goal. The concentrated attack paid off forty eight seconds later when Hamelin of Laval scored on a slap shot. Then at 14:58 Lagace scored on a beautiful bullet drive into the bottom right hand corner after taking passes from Hamelin and Roy. Less than a minute later, however, McGill broke the deadlock when Robillard passed to Irving who slid the puck into the bottom left hand corner to put McGill ahead 3-2.

Banquet Planned For Commerce Next Tuesday

The Commerce Undergraduate Society has announced plans for a Commerce banquet to be held in the Union grill room commencing at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, February 13.

The guest speaker will be Mr. Monge, Treasurer of the International Paper Company of Canada. Mr. Monge will discuss the pulp and paper industry with special references to opportunities available in the industry for Commerce graduates. In addition some ten professors from the School of Commerce will be in attendance.

"In former years this banquet was an annual affair, and it is hoped to revive it," said Pete Desjardins, social chairman of the C.U.S. It is planned to serve a full course meal by trained waitresses.

There are a limited number of tickets available for the banquet, these may be obtained from the various class presidents for 75 cents each. A quart of beer and free cigarettes will be provided.

Finalists to Attend Basketball Game

A basketball game, the McGill concert band, five Carnival Queen candidates and dance will be featured at this Friday night's Hoopla Hop at Sir Arthur Currie Gym commencing at 7 p.m.

A basketball game between MacDonald and the McGill Intermediates will start the evening. This game will be followed by another, which has the Western Mustangs taking the floor with the Senior Redmen.

The McGill concert band and cheerleaders will be on hand to entertain the spectators, and support the Redmen.

The dance itself is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock with the music being provided by the Escorts under the leadership of Ron Murray. Filling the vocal spot for the Escorts will be Jennie Masters. Decorations for the evening will be simple and in a basketball theme.

Following his talk to the St. James Literary Society last week, the Dean has agreed to speak to the I.R.C. on a similar theme. The Problems Of Collective Peace.

Prof. Fieldhouse will discuss the profound changes in international affairs brought about by first the League Of Nations and the U.N.; the basic differences between these two and their effect on history.

Red Philosophy, Jewish Question Goldhagen Topic

The Intercollegiate Zionist Federation of America will present a second lecture on the subject of "Communist Philosophy and the Jewish Question" by Yitzhak Goldhagen this evening at 7 p.m. at the Hillel Foundation.

This evening's discussion will deal with the post-revolutionary period and the attitude and effect of this period upon Jewish culture, the use of the Hebrew language, Zionism, and semitism. The speaker will also discuss the effect of the Trotsky-Stalin quarrel upon the Jewish people.

Tonight's talk will be continuation of a lecture given last week on the pre-revolutionary influences of communism as they related to the Jews of Europe. This included a summary of the attitudes of Marx, Engel, the social democrats of Austria and Russia, Lenin and the earlier views of Stalin.

Goldhagen is a graduate of the Jewish Teachers' Seminary and is at present a student at Sir George Williams College. He was born in Poland and received his early education in Russia and Germany.

The IZFA group will hold a supper at the Hillel Foundation at 6 p.m. prior to the talk.

A&S Debating Trophy Contest Now Under Way

The first of the elimination debates for the Arts and Science Debating Trophy, was won yesterday by G. Mannard and G. Burke, who successfully upheld the resolution that price controls should be re-established in Canada. Speaking for the negative were D. Savage, and B. Rothman.

The two speakers of the affirmative maintained that symptoms existing in Canada were comparatively the same as those in the United States before price controls were instituted. "Prevailing conditions in Canada show the need of controls here," they said.

Rothman, the first speaker for the negative, tried to show that if price controls were instituted, wages must follow on a control basis. Mr. Rothman's colleagues elaborated on this statement concerning wages, and went on to say that hoarding would inevitably result.

Judge of the debate was Trum Malcom, and Mike Awada was chairman.

mural Council plan, which they voted to submit to the Students' Executive Council, the Students' Athletic Council, and the Athletics Board, for "careful consideration." would affect the make-up of the Athletics Board, the S.A.C., and the Intramural Council, and would create two new student councils.

The present S.A.C., said the Intramural plan, is "an unfielded and inefficient organization," because of the immense growth McGill athletics have undergone since it was first formed.

Text of the Crawford-Magyar motion to be presented today follows:

"Whereas we feel that the present system of regulation of athletic activities is undemocratic in its representation, and,

"Whereas it is our opinion that students are unaware of the Government of athletics, and,

"Whereas we are of the opinion that a reorganization of the present student athletics administration is required, and,

"Whereas a plan has been suggested by a group of students, and,

"Whereas the Students Intramural Recreational Council, a representative body, has unanimously approved and recommended such a plan.

"Be it resolved that the Students' Society approve in principle the plan so proposed, thus giving voice to the students' recognition of a need for a general discussion of the reorganization."

inefficient organization, mally because it is directly responsible for too many and too varied departments of Athletics.

Since the various departments of Athletics have grown so much, they are now almost integral in themselves. The solution to the present problem, it would seem, lies in an expanding and co-ordinating set up on a larger scale than the present S.A.C.

If a survey is made of the members of the present S.A.C., it will be readily seen that this body is mainly composed of appointed members of intercollegiate sports. There are also members of special committees such as Winter Carnival, Athletics Night, the M.O.C., the Band, etc. The S.I.R.C. also have a seal on the S.A.C., as well as the student member at large.

As it now exists, the S.A.C. is not an efficiently operating organization. It is verging upon, but is not wholly an Intercollegiate Athletic organization. It is hampered by the presence of members who are not concerned immediately with such. And, in trying to represent these other members, because of the overwhelming weight of the Intercollegiate sports representatives who are not particularly interested in Intramural Athletics, for example, it cannot do an efficient job.

The Winter Carnival representative has no particular interest in what the Intercollegiate football team wears on the field or in the troubles in the Intramural organization. Similarly, the Intercollegiate football representative cares very little where the Downhill for the Carnival is held.

The S.I.R.C. has grown terrifically in the past two or three years and can no longer afford to be a subordinate organization. Its members are all elected representatives of various faculties, and should not, because of the interest of these faculties in Intramural sports, be forced to be subordinate to an organization with such diverse interests as the present S.A.C.

In consideration of the above facts, the drafters of this letter would like to propose that a new Athletic organization be set up upon the following lines.
